

Home

AboutUs

WhatsNew

Donors

Homeowners

Sponsors

Volunteers

ContactUs

Renovation Station

HFHWC Receiving National Award from Habitat for Humanity International

Williamson County residents have known for years the difference the local affiliate of Habitat for Humanity has made in the area.

Now, the work of the staff and volunteers will be recognized nationally. Habitat for Humanity of Williamson County has been named "2004 Best Mid-Sized Affiliate" by Habitat for Humanity International.

The award will be presented at the National Executive Directors Conference in Colorado in July.

The Williamson County affiliate previously won the regional award for affiliates in Tennessee, Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio. The regional winners are then sent on to compete for the national award.

"I was surprised when we won the regional award, but after that I didn't think much about it," said Ermon Lature, the local affiliate's executive director.

The award is based on several criteria — annual house production, maintaining a Christian identity, selection and support of families, business management and governance, increase in numbers and local partnership and collaboration.

Taken from an article by Kathryn Chavez, Staff Writer for The Tennessean, Williamson A.M., dated Friday, June 3, 2005.

For the full text of the article, click here.